

AAPS/JPS “Permission to Publish” Agreement

The purpose of this form is to protect fossil title holders from publication theft or intellectual property damage. A manuscript submitter or researcher must have this form filled in by the original fossil’s title holder IF... 1) they are NOT the original fossil’s title holder or 2) if the specimen has never been published on in the past or 3) The title holder, during registration in the past, placed restrictions on the topics open for publication. If there is any doubt whether the form is necessary, the researcher or submitter of the manuscript should contact the JPS via e-mail during the submission process.

I, _____ (print original title holder’s name), herein referred to as the “title holder” to the following fossil or fossils; _____

(Please use AAPS accession numbers if any); hereby grant permission to the following individual(s); _____;
to publish information and analysis on the above stated fossils in the Journal of Paleontological Sciences. I understand and agree that once the specimen has been published on in the journal that others may also publish on the same topic or theme for said fossils without additional consent. I understand that by signing this document I release any and all prior restrictions on publication with the exception of the following topics (if any): _____. These topics shall remain off-limits to publication to protect my intellectual property rights until either I publish on such topics or until I give permission to another researcher through an additional ‘Permission to Publish Agreement’.

By signing below, I warrant that I fully understand and agree to the above permission to publish agreement.
